Local Plant To Produce Navy Engine

The Guardian, a liquid engine power plant used in a new Navy missile, will be produced at the Hunter-Bristol plant, Emille. Deliveries are scheduled for next spring by Reaction Motors, a division of Thiokol Chemical Corporation. Hunter-Bristol, another division of Thiokol, will operate as a branch plant of the Reaction Motors Division.

E. Dana Gibson, formerly program manager for the Guardian at Reaction Motors, has been appointed plant manager of the new branch manufacturing plant. He will be responsible to R. W. Young, Reaction Motors general manager. Bucks County Industrial Development Corporation personnel assisted in the survey which led Reaction Motors management to select the Hunter-Bristol plant for expansion, a plant spokesman said.

The spokesman said the availability of excellent housing for the highly skilled personnel on the project was a determining factor. The plant spokesman said the individuals involved on the new project will be highly trained technical and engineering personnel. There is no indication as to how many persons will be part of the new production.

Special Session Begins

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — (UPI) — The Arkansas Legislature went into emergency special session today keyed to ram through with lightning swiftness a five part anti-integration program prepared by Gov. Orval E. Faubus as a road block to federal desegregation efforts.

As the lawmakers strained at the traces, eager to whip into action, school supt. Virgil Blossom sat down across town with Negro parents and several students who want to lower the racial barriers further at violence-stricken Central High School and smash the color line for the first time at new Hall High School.

Blossom called Dr. William J. Massie, a Negro physician, who agreed to meet with him and other Negro parents today.

To Address Legislature Faubus was scheduled to address an opening joint session of the Legislature today before a nation-wide live television hookup. He planned to outline his program. An aide said he would reveal "several startling" aspects to the integration problem.

The lawmakers met in a race against time with the U.S. Supreme Court, which has scheduled an emergency session at noon on Thursday to hear oral arguments in the Little Rock crisis. Faubus hopes to have his legislative package enacted into law by Thursday morning.

Meanwhile, United Press International was informed by a reliable source the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was "making a strong and determined effort" to have "quite a number of Negro students" appear at the school board offices this afternoon to attempt to enroll in Central and Hall.

Will Leave Names Three Negroes who graduated from junior high last year attempted to enroll Monday, and "two more will definitely" try to enroll today, UPI was told. Blossom confirmed Monday night the three had appeared and said he would "try to see them today". "We don't know if Blossom will see any additional Negro students and their parents this afternoon or not, but they will go down and leave their names with the school offices anyway," the source said. Blossom and school board attorneys prepared to leave for Washington this afternoon to present their case.

Hurricane's Course Parallels Florida Coast MIAMI (UPI)—Hurricane Daisy with winds of 85 miles an hour pushed on in a northwesterly path today but posed no "very serious threat" to the southeastern states. Miami forecaster Walter Davis said Daisy was following a course paralleling the Florida coast.

Motor Boat Owners Protest State Tax

A warning by the Pennsylvania Fish Commission that motor boat owners using Neshaminy Creek must apply for a license within the next few days or be subject to heavy fines was protested today by Neshaminy boat yard operators.

Paul Kovitch, owner of Sunnyside Boat Yard, said he and other yard owners have engaged an attorney and expect to appeal the motor boat tax directly to Harrisburg.

The tax is $1 per year per cylinder plus a 25 cent service charge.

Since 1933

W. W. Britton, chief enforcement officer of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, told the Courier-Times yesterday the tax is not a new one. Britton said it has been in effect since 1933 but that it was just "never enforced." He said a similar tax is in effect in many states.

Jack Metzger, deputy harbor-master and a member of the 16-man Water Vehicle Safety Committee appointed by Governor Leader recently, called the levy a violation of free enterprise. Metzger said that on August 21, the Senate passed a bill requiring a license for boats with engines of at least 10 horsepower.

"This," he said, "should be all the licensing required for boat owners since the license would be recognized in all 49 states." Metzger blasted the proposed enforcement of the tax on all motor craft in the Neshaminy Creek on the grounds that any motor boat operator "just passing through the stream" would be subject to a fine unless he had paid his tax.

Other States

"Suppose a similar tax was imposed on boats using inland streams in other states," he said. "That would mean that every time a boat owner passed through one of these streams he would have to pay a fine unless he loaded up on licenses from every state he expected to visit."

Britton, who said the fines would be imposed against violators unless they paid their tax "in the next few days," also said he couldn't see why so much fuss was being made about "a couple of dollars a year." He said most boats had no more than one or two cylinders.

Metzger refuted this, saying many boat engines have as many as eight cylinders and some have twice that number. He said he would join the fight against the tax and do everything he could to have it stamped out. Metzger is also president of the Delaware River Yachtman's League.

Good Evening!

Sunny, cooler skies.

That's what the man says, that's how it appears. Let's hope everything's right.

Hurricane Daisy bustling around 250 miles off the Florida coast and heading north.

Storm chasers say no danger as yet to the mainland, but just the same you never know. They didn't give these hurricanes glib names because they're so predictable.

Not too much predictable at the moment in the tragic Little Rock story, even though the land's highest court has been summoned in extraordinary session Thursday to come up with a decision.

About the best we can do is to hope that sanity and reason will prevail and that the best interests of this nation—at home and abroad—will be the prime consideration in trying to resolve this very, very delicate question, rabble-rouser Faubus notwithstanding.

Did you ever stop to think just how many of the country's very basic and very critical problems could have been solved over past years if the selfish and self-seeking politicians hadn't stepped in and knocked themselves out conspiring and yelling for everything but the public welfare?

No less true on the national level, of course, than on the state and local scenes.

National Safety Council says 420 will die during the upcoming Labor Day weekend, more than 12,000 will be injured.

We know a slick way to make the Council look awful silly. Anytime anybody gets an urge to leap behind the wheel and go, collapse on the lawn chair until the feeling wears off.

The fellow who has a lot of responsibilities on his shoulders doesn't have room for many chips.

Too many people think they're big wheels because they are going around in circles.

You like living? Drive safely.

Guiseppe Farruggio, Local Trucker, Dies

Guiseppe Farruggio, 71, founder and president of Farruggio's Trucking Service, Bristol, died yesterday at Graduate Hospital, Philadelphia, where he had been a patient for five weeks.

Mr. Farruggio had been in failing health since July 25 when he suffered a heart attack. He lived at 901 Mansion St. for the past 28 years.

Grocery Store

Born in Italy, Mr. Farruggio came to Bristol as a small boy and lived here ever since. He started out as a baker, then began a small grocery store at 901 Mansion St. which he operated until about five years ago.

Mr. Farruggio had been in the trucking business for nearly 45 years. He began with a small truck in which he did some moving and local hauling.

By hard work and with the help of his family, Farruggio's Trucking emerged as the largest business of its kind in the Lower Bucks County area. It now boasts 50 pieces of equipment and hauls general commodities between Bristol and Philadelphia.

Mr. Farruggio was a member of the Sons of Italy Lodge, Bristol; the American Trucking Association and the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association in Philadelphia.

Wanted: 3 Moon Folk

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — An American scientist is looking for two men and a woman who would be willing to live for eight days as though they were camping out on the moon.

Prof. Tibor Helvey of Kansas University said the volunteers would have to agree to spend most of their time in a circular hut 16 feet in diameter, using special lightweight tools and utensils to create a semblance of the moon's feeble gravity.

Anytime they wanted to leave the hut to stroll in the simulated "moonscape" outside, they would have to don space suits.

Helvey, who is working on an advanced project for the Radiation Corporation, of Orlando, Fla., said in an interview that not enough attention is being paid to the problem of preparing humans for the space age.

"Why two men and a woman?" he was asked.

"Well," he smiled, "one man by himself might go psycho. Two men would quarrel—maybe a man and woman would, too. Three people have the best chance of getting along together, and by making one of them a woman we increase the chance."

Archer Wounds Dog, Sought By Police

Middletown Township police are looking for an archer who shot a small dog in the Cobalt Ridge Section of Levittown yesterday.

The dog was found on the front lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Miskell, of 25 Candytuft Road, Cobalt Ridge at 9:30 last night. An arrow was sticking in the animal's back. The dog was still alive. Patrolmen Joseph Salone and Harold Briggs took the animal to a veterinarian for treatment. Police said they will continue the investigation and will report the case to the SPCA.

Military Buildup Reported Next Step Of U.S. On Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — The commander of the U. S. 13th Air Force arrived here today for military talks, and there were reports the United States might increase its air and sea power around Formosa.

Eight units of the U. S. 7th Fleet which took 1,600 Marines to Singapore for shore leave left the British port en route to Okinawa. Reports here said the move was ordered in connection with the Communist activity around the Quemoy Islands.

Communist artillery bombarded the Quemoy Islands for the fourth consecutive day. Nationalist officials estimated 96,000 rounds were fired Saturday, Sunday and Monday, killing or wounding more than 600 persons on the Quemoy.

Britain Sends Carriers

A London dispatch said Britain was sending two aircraft carriers to reinforce its Far Eastern fleet but an Admiralty spokesman said there was "nothing new and nothing sinister" about the shift. He said it "does not mean the Far Eastern situation has deteriorated or anything like that."

Maj. Gen. Thomas S. Moorman, commander of the 13th Air Force, flew to Taipei today from his Clark Field headquarters in the

Air Force Alerted

TOKYO — UPI — The U. S. 5th Air Force in Japan has been put on an alert status, a spokesman said today.

U. S. Naval forces in Japan announced yesterday that its forces were increasing their state of alert.

An Air Force spokesman said that "under existing world conditions, it is a normal routine precaution to increase the status of alert."

Philippines and began conferring on "operational matters" with Vice Adm. Roland Smoot, senior American military commander in Nationalist China and commander of the U. S. Taiwan (Formosa) Defense Command.

The U. S. Air Force now has about 10 supersonic F-100D jet fighter planes piloted by Americans on Formosa and under Moorman's command. The Nationalist air force is equipped with older F-86 Sabrejets, said to be no match for the new Russian-built Mig-17S.

A Washington dispatch said the U. S. military was considering swift air reinforcement of Formosa Strait although so far no movement of reinforcements has been ordered.

But the sources said military men were considering the dispatch of a composite air strike force in the face of Red China's menacing moves against the offshore islands. Such a strike force is made up of et fighters, light bombers, tankers and transports. Such a force would strengthen the U. S. 7th Fleet, which now has four destroyers and about 300 aircraft including A3D jet bombers and two types of supersonic fighter planes.

Singapore dispatches said the eight units of the 7th Fleet would return to their home base in Okinawa where the 1,600 Marines of the 3rd Marine Division are based. They are expected to join Nationalist units in war games the first week in September at Fangleao in Southern Formosa.

Monitors Ask Hoffa Explain Commission

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Court-appointed monitors today demanded a seven-point explanation within 48 hours of what Teamsters President James R. Hoffa had in mind when he set up an "anti-racketeering commission."

Martin F. O'Donoghue, chairman of the monitors, made public a letter asking Hoffa for more precise details on the functions and operating procedures of the new commission.

The monitors were named by a federal judge to oversee Hoffa's stewardship. Hoffa said the new commission, whose functions presumably might clash with those of the monitors, would help the union rid itself of racketeer elements.

Investigation Limits

The monitors asked if the commission will be limited to investigating alleged gangster domination of the giant truck union, whether it will be a permanent group, whether it will conduct hearings, and how it will fit into the union's own complaints and appeals procedures.

Probers Say Local 'Bought'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate racketers investigators charged that one of Teamster President James R. Hoffa's lieutenants "bought" control of a St. Louis warehouse workers local union for $78,410 in 1949.

The committee opened its investigation of Teamster Vice President Harold J. Gibbons with testimony from Lawrence J. Camie, one-time executive officer of Local 688 and now a St. Louis trucking and real estate operator.

Camie denied that Local 688 was "sold" to Gibbons. He said Gibbons, then head of the St. Louis local of the CIO United Distribution Workers, wanted a teamster charter, but it was decided instead to merge the CIO union with the local.

He said executives of Local 688 were given the choice of staying on or resigning with full pay for the three years remaining in their terms. Seven officials took the pay, amounting to $78,410.

Skilled Cast Aids Show At Playhouse

By JIM GOODMAN
Courier-Times Staff Writer

With a skilled cast headed by Chester Morris and Signe Hasso, the Bucks County Playhouse production of "A Frenzy of Peace and Quiet" gets a lot of mileage out of what is for the most part a fairly private joke.

The joke is on the Bucks County Playhouse, Producer Mike Ellis and summer theatre in general. The play is written by a New Hope writer, set in a town that has more than a faint resemblance to New Hope, concerns itself with a summer theatre lodged in a barn-like building and even has a flood that may remind some theatre-goers of the disastrous 1955 flood of the Delaware River in Bucks County.

Morris As Producer

Morris is the strawhat producer trying to make good where nine previous producers have failed. But the business operations are minor problems.

The producer is more concerned with resisting the attempts of an ex-mistress to seduce him back to New York, keeping happy a broken down actor who is the star of his upcoming production enforcing a strict moral code on the acting apprentices and sobering up a has-been playwright.

Most of the producer's noble goals are thrown into the river before the evening is over and it takes a devastating flood to restore a sense of sanity to the frenzied proceedings.

The theatre farce succeeded in eliciting a long series of guffaws from the Playhouse audience last night but this reviewer failed to be swept up by the general enthusiasm.

Visually Superb

W. Broderick Hackett has created a set that is visually superb in its recreation of a split level New Hope house. It is as good as anything you are likely to see in New York but it unfortunately takes up most of the stage and crams its actors into a very limited space.

The play itself is a minor effort but Mr. Morris, Miss Hasso and Leon Janney are excellent actors and they make the most of a script that tends to get bogged down in pointless dialogue. With a little more room to move around, they might be able to speed up the proceedings enough to disguise the thinness of the vehicle.

George Ives, Frederic Tozer and Geoffrey Lumb are impressive in supporting roles and Jessica Walter, an apprentice in her second role this season, has a face and figure that is something to write home about.

Meanwhile, seven of the nine Negroes who touched off violence at Central last year, planned to return to Little Rock today and try to get back into Central. They received a $1,000 scholarship from a national Negro Elks convention Monday night. One of the original nine graduated, and another was expelled.

Troubles Elsewhere

The Arkansas Legislature met amid these other integration developments:

—In Norfolk, Va., U. S. District Judge Walter E. Hoffman ordered the Norfolk School Board Monday to reconsider all 151 of the Negro applications to white schools it rejected last week. The order put pressure on the school board to admit 12 to 30 Negroes to white schools next month or run the risk of a contempt citation.

—The Virginia State Pupil Placement Board at Richmond Monday denied the applications of Negroes seeking entry at Arlington and Newport News.

—More than 100 Negro youths in Oklahoma City went into their third day of trying to break the color barrier at a department store luncheonette.

—Seven of the nine Negro youngsters who attended Little Rock's Central High School last year were honored Monday night by the National Negro Elks Convention at Washington.

Twp. Board Praised By Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of former President Franklin D. Roosevelt, has praised the Bristol Township School Board for naming its new high school in honor of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer.

Louis C. Souder, secretary of the Township school board, last night confirmed reports that the former First Lady had sent a letter congratulating the school board for its action.

The school board has been under fire from the American Legion for the selection of the name. Yesterday the county Republican organization joined the Legion in the attack on the Oppenheimer name.

Mrs. Roosevelt's letter read in part: "I think it is a wonderful thing that you are naming your new high school in honor of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, whom I consider a most distinguished citizen of our country and worthy of the tribute you are paying him."

Dr. Oppenheimer, who is considered largely responsible for America's development of the atom bomb, was denied government security clearance after an investigation by a government committee. However, the committee declared he was a loyal citizen.

To Read Letter

Souder said Mrs. Roosevelt's letter will be read officially at the regular meeting of the township school board, Sept. 11.

At the same time Souder lashed back at critics of the board's action. He said he believes people of Bristol Township are well aware of the fact that Dr. Oppenheimer was "proven a completely loyal and dedicated American citizen by the Gray committee appointed by President Eisenhower despite efforts of certain irresponsible Republicans to create a furor over the naming of the school."

Souder said, "This committee went even further and stated that this nation owes a great debt of gratitude to Dr. Oppenheimer."

"I personally feel this school board has named this school in honor of a great and loyal American scientist who is currently director of the foremost educational establishment in the United States—the Institute of Advanced Study at Princeton University."

Going In Circles

By MAURY ALLEN

Tomorrow is just another day for most people. It might be a little more noteworthy at the Palmer Esposito home at 42 Hedge Road, Highland Park, Levittown. Mrs. Esposito and her sister, Alma Mante, will celebrate their birthdays tomorrow. Mrs. Esposito will also mark Aug. 27 as the day she became engaged. A year later she became an Aug. 27 bride. Two years later, Pamela her daughter, was born. The family collied dog was born Aug. 27.

Son Ronald was born May 4, 1958. Somebody stole the calendar.

The Levittown League of Women Voters had a booth at the Levittown-A-Rae with the theme of "Back Your Ballot with a Buck." The women offered copies of a Readers Digest article with that title to the general public interested in politics.

Getting the reprints sounds easy but it wasn't.

The Digest articles were mistakenly sent to a wrong address, Mrs. Dorothy Dombert of the League called the digest office at Pleasantville in northern New York state. She explained that she needed copies immediately. The Digest obliged by sending the copies down by taxi to the community hall. The articles cost the League $9. The taxi ride cost the magazine three times as much.

Sandy Oppenheimer, city editor of the Courier-Times, traveled 1500 miles to Miami Beach with his family to find out what we knew all along. Yes, Sandy, it is a small world.

He pulled into a Miami Beach motel and went for a cooling swim. Sitting on a lounge near the pool later he fell into idle conversation with a woman, Mrs. Robert J. Meyers was waiting for her husband, a Naval Reservist in the submarine force, to join her from Key West.

Mrs. Meyers and family were also out of towners.

Their address? Of course, 26 Valley Road, Violetwood, Levittown, Pa.

Like women, automobiles can be very temperamental things. Last winter I took a small 1,000 mile trip and wound up having mechanical difficulties that I never knew existed.

Now I come back from a vacation journey that covered 4,000 miles and the same car acted like a sweet, obedient child. This trip covered hills and dunes, cities and towns and country roads of every kind from here to Kentucky, northern Michigan, Canada, and New York.

With a car that works, it's a great big beautiful country.

Installations Guarded To Halt Raids

PARIS (UPI)—Police and troops with "shoot on sight" orders ringed refineries and oil installations in major French cities today to prevent new raids by Algerian rebels.

Terrorists who bombed and burned oil installations and shot up police stations Monday staged no fresh attacks during the early hours today. Seven persons died in Monday's violence.

As dawn broke police and troops tightened security precautions. Guards had orders to shoot suspicious characters on sight.

Steel-helmeted police armed with submachine guns guarded the industrial suburbs of Paris.

The rampage by "commandos" of the rebel National Liberation Front was the worst since the start of the Algerian revolt for independence began nearly four years ago.

It was believed the Algerian rebels were seeking to bring home to the French public their hostility toward Premier Charles de Gaulle's proposed new constitution, which makes no provision for Algerian independence. France votes on the constitution in a referendum Sept. 28 and De Gaulle is touring French possessions in Africa to build up support for his pet project.

Talk Given On Mideast

Nationalism is the flame which ignites the explosive Middle Eastern population, Dr. William McKenna, Temple University economist and political scientist, declared last night.

Dr. McKenna, speaking at an open forum at the Levittown Community Hall, sponsored by the League of Women Voters and the LPRA, traced the history of the turbulent area from its days of wealth and glory to its eventual degradation and exploitation by the European powers.

Dr. McKenna said the will of the people for some sort of Arabie Union is "the flood of the future and will not be stemmed."

He did hold forth the hope that eventually some of the feelings of the people might subside into a more rational channel where the drives and energies of the people could be utilized for the tremendous effort necessary to put the Mid East on an economically self-sustaining basis.

The many controversial issues raised by Dr. McKenna led to a long and stimulating question and answer period. Some of the more complex problems of the area, including the role of the UN, were explored during this period.

Delay In Eviction Sought For Grandview Estates Family

Harold Lefcourt, Bristol Township commissioner and Congressional candidate, today said he is seeking to prevent the threatened eviction of a resident of Melvin Gardens, Grandview Estates, Morrisville, whose home has been purchased by the Federal Housing Administration.

Lefcourt, in a statement released this morning, said he will demand that the Federal National Mortgage Association delay eviction of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stout from their home at 493 Melvin Ave. Mrs. Stout said the F.N.M.A., known informally as "Fanny May" has ordered them to get out by Thursday or be evicted.

50 Injured In Bus Crash

COOK, Ind. (UPI) — At least 50 persons were injured, eight of them critically, when a Greyhound bus rammed into the back of a semi-trailer truck at high speed and veered into a field.

All of the seriously hurt were rushed to St. Margaret's Hospital in nearby Hammond, Ind.

Authorities said the bus driver, who was among the critically hurt, was pinned in the bus and 20 men needed to pry him free. There were no reports of fatalities.

All available emergency equipment in the area was rushed to the crash scene to shuttle the injured to hospitals at Hammond, Gary and Crown Point.

Authorities said the bus was en route to Chicago with 50 passengers. Names of the injured passengers and the bus driver were not immediately available.

Cook is located about 50 miles south of Chicago.

Scrap Metal Spills From Trailer On Rt. 1

The tail gate of a tractor trailer opened up on Route 1, Falls Township, yesterday afternoon, spilling scrap metal on the highway and tilting the trailer over as the driver pulled to the side of the road.

The vehicle spilled over when the weight load shifted, police said. Falls Township Police identified the driver as Albert Barry of Philadelphia.

One of the wheels of the cab stuck in the mud when the driver pulled to the side after his tail gate fell open.

No Order Received Bucks County Sheriff Harold Dando today had received no eviction order.

An attorney for the Association, William R. Cameron, of Cornwells Heights, said "Fanny May" can do nothing to prevent the eviction. Any relief would have to come from the F.H.A., which purchased the house from the F.N.M.A. in a sheriff's sale in June, he said.

The sheriff's sale was held when "Fanny May" foreclosed the mortgage of Melvin Gardens, Inc., in default of payments by the developer, the attorney said. The F.H.A. has acquired the title from "Fanny May," but will not make final settlement until the house is vacated. Therefore, the F.N.M.A. is ordering the Stouts to vacate, he said.

Cameron said Stout could avoid eviction by paying the amount due on the house, then taking legal action if Melvin Gardens, Inc., owes him the money.

Sold Mortgage Melvin Gardens obtained a $9,500 mortgage on the house from the Frankford Trust Co., Cameron said. The bank then sold the mortgage to the F.N.M.A. in 1956.

The Stout home was one of 76 sold by the Sheriff in June, when the mortgages were foreclosed by the F.N.M.A. Most of the houses were unoccupied.

Says Neglected Lefcourt is the Democratic Party nominee in the November election for congressman from Bucks-Lehigh District. He said attempts of Melvin Gardens residents to resolve their problems have been neglected by his Re-

Institute To Offer High School Subjects

The William Penn Center, Fallington, today reported an enthusiastic response to its announcement that the Falls institute, a part of the Center, would again offer High School subjects. Current plans call for the classes to begin in late September.

The Institute is licensed as a private school by the Department of Education of Pennsylvania.

Early replies to the announcement made Aug. 14 indicate that interest is strong in the field of languages and in particular beginning Spanish and French. "With one out of every ten residents traveling to a foreign country each year it is easy to see the reason for this demand," Samuel Prellwitz, chairman of William Penn Center, said.

Accelerated courses in 70 subjects are available at the Falls Institute at convenient times Monday through Friday evenings and Saturday mornings. An individualized program is worked out for students.

Mr. Prellwitz asked interested persons to write or call the William Penn Center with their requirements or suggestions. He said, "We are asking the community to help us determine which courses are most needed so that we can concentrate our effort in the most important areas."

Car, Truck Crash On Street Road

A pickup truck and a car collided head on last night shortly after 9 p.m. on Street Road near the Johnsville Naval Air Development Center. Two men, a woman and three small children between the ages of two and four who rode in the truck, and a 70-year-old Trevoise man and his wife, the occupants of the car, were taken to Abington Hospital by the Hershman Rescue Squad and released after being treated for minor injuries.

Driver of the truck was Paul Froshour, Valley View Trailer Park, Danboro, who was charged by Warminster Police with reckless driving.

His brother, Joe Froshour, Bristol Road, Churchville, was arrested by police and charged with disorderly conduct. Warminster police said that he refused to show his owner's license and became abusive.

Passengers in the truck were Mrs. Paul Froshour and their three small children. One of the children suffered a bruise on the forehead.

Shaken but apparently not seriously injured were Paul W. Clemmer, of West End Ave., Trevoise, driver of the car, and his wife.

Damage was not immediately determined but police said that it was considerable.

Upper Southampton police Chief Charles W. Gray, who was the first to arrive on the scene, took charge of directing traffic around the accident scene.

Bus Drivers Union Asked At Bensalem

The transportation committee of the Bensalem School Board will meet with United Mine Workers union representatives at the high school tonight to discuss the possibility of setting up a bus drivers union in the school district.

Informed sources said it's doubtful that an agreement can be reached at this time because a contract agreement has already been negotiated and settled for this school term, and only so much money was allotted in the budget for transportation salaries.

The Bensalem School District employs seven bus drivers and maintains seven buses. J. Hamilton Bushnell of Trevoise, a contractor, also hires a fleet of seven buses and drivers to the school district — a total of 14 buses and drivers.

The present contract calls for drivers to receive $15 a day. School officials said Bushnell's drivers did ask for a dollar a day more, but their request wasn't granted. The possibility of forming a union at Bensalem may be a result of this bid for more money.

School officials explained that both Bushnell drivers and school-employed drivers are paid at the same rate.
